Time: 9:30a-12:22p

Location: Tennessee Shakespeare Co, Rehearsal Hall

Breaks: 10:36a-10:41a

General

---

1. Today we began our day working through some notes from yesterday's designer run. Following that we ran through the show. Obsidian PR was in during the run taking footage and stills for social media purposes.

Scenic

---

1. Can we get a second guitar hook instead of the guitar stand? We have marked where it should be placed on the bookshelf with a blue x.

Costumes

---

1. We are having consistent issues with Emily's Lucy beanie staying put on her head. Is there anything we can do about this?
2. Thank you for the new chain for the pocket watch! It works great!

Sound/Music

---

1. We have the sound files that we are using for the show in the dropbox in the sound folder under final sound files. The only file we do not currently have is the recorded voices during the dream sequence. As placeholders, we have left in the 2 star voices files as well, however Jo is still working on these sound effects. We will have finals of the 3 remaining files ASAP.

Lights

---

1. Thank you for the lights onstage today!

Props

---

1. Can we attach our ribbon to the gift box that we reveal Edward out of? We would still like for it to look like the ribbon is tied around the entire box, however we would like for Emily to simply lift the lid off instead of having to untie the ribbon.
2. Would it be possible to cue the biscuit in half to make it thinner?
3. Alex provided us with a different chain to use with the pocket-watch that works great!

Stage Management

---

1. Nothing for today, thanks!

Attendance

---

1. Everyone was on time and ready to go!

General

1. Today's audience was a pretty good size. They were pretty active in their responses throughout the show and we had a couple of continuous chuckles from certain audience members.
2. A couple of moments the audience enjoyed: The entire storybook scene, Lucy's humanlike responses during her interactions with Bull and Jack, and the reveal of the fake eaten steak.

Scenery

---

1. Nothing for today, thanks!

Lighting

---

1. About 3 minutes into the show today our LED system for the stars started chaotically flashing even though they were working properly during our pre-show checks and at the top of the show. When this occurred Alison called Jeremy to ask for troubleshooting methods, which resulted in turning off the entire system until Jeremy could arrive to check on things in person. Upon Jeremy's arrival the LEDs were still having major issues, which Jeremy thinks is the result of one of the power supplies failing. We decided there was no major troubleshooting method we could implement while the show was running so we decided to move forward without the use of the stars for the remainder of the show. Jeremy has ordered new power supplies and they should arrive prior to our next performance on Wednesday.

1. Nothing for today, thanks!

Props

---

1. The wire in the ears of our Clean Susanna and Malone dolls is beginning to be exposed due to the burlap separating/pulling away. Can we look at this?
